Overview

Ben LaFrombois focuses his practice on mergers and acquisitions, corporate governance, commercial finance, commercial real estate development and business succession planning. He has led the development of private and public strategic initiatives—such as convention center development and regional distribution centers—and he advises individual clients on transfers of wealth, tax savings, marital property and charitable planning.

Ben has significant experience in the food and agricultural industries at the retail, distribution and production levels, including food marketing and labeling, logistics (warehousing and transportation), inventory management and financing with an emphasis on the dairy industry. He also has significant experience with corporate governance, deal structures and the financing of businesses.

Ben is an avid speaker on business issues as they relate to law and finance; management and strategic direction of multi-disciplinary projects, including mergers and acquisitions; and management of private and public strategic initiatives.

Prior to joining MG+M, Ben served as vice president and general counsel of WOW Logistics Company in Appleton, Wisconsin and as in-house counsel at Ingles Markets, Inc. in Asheville, North Carolina.
